Parenting Time and Visitation

Sanford L. Braver et. al., Public Sentiments About the Parenting Time Adjustment in Child Support Awards, 49 FAM. L.Q. 433 (2015) (addressing the three primary approaches to the intersection of child support and parenting time: treating it as only a factor regarding deviation from the guidelines, recognizing that support should be adjusted when parenting time reaches a level of shared parenting, and adjusting continuously for additional units of parenting time).

Stacy Brustein & Lisa Vollendorf Martin, Paved with Good Intentions: Unintended Consequences of Federal Proposals to Integrate Child Support and Parenting Time, 48 IND. L. REV. 803 (2015) (exploring government-initiated child support proceedings which encourage integration of custody and visitation issues to promote engaged parenting, and evaluating the dangers of creating risks of subjecting custodial parents to domestic violence and of increasing parenting time being used manipulatively to decrease child support).

Karen Syma Czapanskiy, The Shared Custody Child Support Adjustment: Not Worth the Candle, 49 FAM. L.Q. 409 (2015) (calculating how the shared custody adjustment works in practice in different jurisdictions (under an income shares or sliding scale approach) and concluding that this adjustment lowers the standard of living in the primary household).

Laurie S. Kohn, Money Can't Buy You Love: Valuing Contributions by Nonresidential Fathers, 81 BROOK. L. REV. 53 (2015) (urging systemic changes to child support awards and enforcement, as well as visitation time, to emphasize paternal caretaking as much as paternal child support).

John E.B. Myers, “I Won’t Pay Child Support, but I Insist on Visitation.” Should Visitation and Child Support Be Linked?, 45 MC-GEORGE L. REV. 695 (2014) (explaining that although child support and visitation are theoretically decoupled, a number of exceptions selectively link the two, such as in situations of intentional failure to pay child support and intentional interference with visitation).

Jessica Pearson, Establishing Parenting Time in Child Support Cases: New Opportunities and Challenges, 53 FAM. CT. REV. 246 (2015) (surveying various state approaches to parenting time access, particularly in situations involving family violence).
